More than just a handle

Window furniture as an art form

Window handles are more than just an operational mechanism. They are a visible highlight of a window and a design feature of the room in which they're placed. So when we came to create a new range of Roto window handles, we looked to the end user for inspiration. We commissioned market research to find out how people feel about window handles, and what they want from them. The result: RotoSwing. It's more than just a handle: it's a work of art with a purpose.

Design versatility

RotoSwing has a distinctive look, but is also highly adaptable in its appearance. With a wide range of finishes and the option of two-tone colour schemes, it can fit into any modern home interior. Whether you want a handle to blend subtly into the background, or stand out as a design feature, RotoSwing is the perfect complement to a window.

Form and function

RotoSwing comes in five variants, depending on the function required:

- Standard (non-locking)
- Key-lockable
- Secustik®
- Tilt-Safe
- Push-button opening

Colour coordinate your handle

The removable design element is available in a range of colours, greatly widening the design possibilities.

Based on a comprehensive market study

Our study by the Institute of Market Psychology in Mannheim set out to discover what makes consumers choose one handle over another. The research involved a broad survey of private house and apartment owners. Their feedback enabled us to establish which criteria are used to assess and select window handles, with regard to ergonomics and aesthetics. The project also aimed to discover which characteristics contributed to customers' perception of quality.

We found definite preferences in the look and feel of handles, with ergonomics being just as important as appearance. Colour coordination and security are also prime concerns.

The RotoSwing handle family is available in several variations.

In addition to the standard, lockable and push-to-open models shown, the range also includes the Secustik® and Tilt-Safe versions.
